Re: Application for Executive, Customer Experience

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my sincere interest in the Executive, Customer Experience position at AirBorneo. As a software engineering graduate, university lecturer, and someone recognised at state level for technology innovation here in Sarawak, I am drawn to a role that combines analytical thinking, service improvement, and a genuine focus on the people at the heart of the experience. The chance to help shape the passenger journey for a homegrown airline building its reputation on customer-centricity is one I would be proud to take on.

Much of what this role calls for maps closely to work I have already done. During my Research & Development internship at Sarawak Energy Berhad, I designed and delivered an executive Project Overview dashboard in Microsoft Power BI, consolidating dispersed project data into a single analytical interface for the R&D department. That experience taught me how to turn scattered, messy data into clear insights that management can act on — precisely the skill needed to monitor customer satisfaction, complaint trends, and service performance metrics, and to present them in reports and dashboards that drive decisions.

My background in software development and UI/UX design gives me a strong instinct for identifying pain points and friction in a user's journey — the same lens that customer journey mapping across pre-flight, airport, onboard, and post-flight touchpoints requires. As a lecturer at i-CATS University College, I gather and respond to feedback every semester, coordinate across teams, and follow initiatives through to measurable outcomes. I am comfortable engaging stakeholders, researching industry trends and best practices, and preparing the kind of recommendations and business cases that move improvement initiatives forward.

I would welcome the opportunity to bring my blend of data analysis, design thinking, and cross-functional collaboration to AirBorneo's service excellence objectives. Thank you for considering my application — I would be delighted to discuss how I can contribute to strengthening the passenger experience and AirBorneo's reputation for customer-centricity.

Warm regards,

Aina Mardia Mohamad Kerta
